

Terms

Please read the following terms of use carefully before using the Wishtower Limited website, www.wishtower.com (“our website”). For further information on Wishtower Limited we refer you to the Regulatory page of our website.

You are responsible for ensuring that all persons who access our website through your internet connection are aware of these terms, and that they comply with them. You are expected to check this page from time to time to take notice of any changes Wishtower (“we”) have made and we reserve the right to make such changes at any time. Please note that some of the provisions contained in these terms of use may also be superseded or supplemented by provisions or notices published elsewhere on our website.

The content of our website is of general interest and is not intended to apply to a specific circumstance. We have reviewed the material on our website and any legal information, opinions or other content on our website is provided purely for your convenience; it does not constitute legal advice to you and should not be relied on, as it may not be up-to-date or accurate on the day it is viewed.

We are not entering into any express or implied conditions, warranties, terms or representations about any of the content of our website, its accuracy or completeness and we accept no responsibility for loss which may arise from reliance on any such content. To the extent permitted by law, we expressly exclude liability, other than that which arises due to a breach of a duty of care that we owe to you, in which case our liability shall be limited to loss that was a reasonably foreseeable result of such breach, and that which cannot be excluded or limited by law.

The content of external Internet sites that can be reached from our website (via hyperlinks or otherwise), or that are referring to our website is third-party content on which we have no influence or control and for which we take no responsibility.

The content of this site is the copyright of Wishtower Limited who own all the intellectual property rights in this site and all materials published on it. Save as set out below, any reproduction of part of or all of the content or material in any form is prohibited. You may print extracts from our website only for your personal use. You may re-copy extracts to individual third parties or members of your organisation for their personal information only provided that you and any third party acknowledge our copyright within the copy of the extract. No part of our website may be distributed or copied for any commercial purpose.

The English courts will have exclusive jurisdiction over any claim arising from, or related to, a visit to our website.

These terms of use and any dispute or claim arising out of or in connection with them or their subject matter or formation (including non-contractual disputes or claims) shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the law of England and Wales.